Message from the Board Chair

Dear SCI partners, supporters and friends,

More than a quarter of a century has passed since the beginning of the profound political, economic, social, and cultural transformations that followed the overthrow of the authoritarian regimes and paved the way to democracy and market economy in Albania, the Balkans, and Eastern Europe. But, differently from what we dreamed in the early 1990s, the path leading to the consolidation of democracy, rule of law, establishment of a functioning state, harmonized economic development, gender equality, and social inclusion of vulnerable groups, turned out to be neither a one-way, nor a simple path. Rule of law remains a major challenge for Albania and our region. Inequality in the benefits of economic growth that the market economy brings, as well as the inefficiency of public services cause increasing inequality and major social problems. Strengthening good governance that starts with the uncompromising fight against corruption, is still a multifaceted challenge facing Albanian society and the Western Balkans. Planning and managing growth in a way that does not hurt future life opportunities and development - what is called 'sustainable development' - is still more of a goal than a reality in our region. These challenges loom large. But so do the desire and commitment of women and men, young and old, in urban and rural areas, to strengthen the democratic state, increase wellbeing, and guarantee the implementation of rights and justice in the countries where we live. Civil society, including non-profit and non-governmental organizations, has an extremely important role to play in realizing these aspirations of citizens. With this conviction rooted in many years of activism and extensive professional experience, we founded in 2015 the Social Contract Institute (SCI) with the desire and commitment to contribute to strengthening the rule of law, expanding civic participation in public life and decision-making, as well as sustainable development in Albania and the Western Balkans. The report we present here will inform you about SCI's first steps in all these directions. This report testifies to SCI's commitment to transparency, and the spirit of cooperation as core values of civil society organizations. We heartily thank you for your contribution to SCI's work and invite you to join us in our ongoing initiatives.

Warm greetings,
Andrea Lako
